

Increased Profitability

Katahdins are an important component in many large commercial operations. Whether they are straight bred or cross bred, the Katahdin influenced flock has many advantages. Non-seasonal breeding and the high demand for Katahdin meat increase the shepherd's ability to make a profit.

Katahdins are being commingled by cattle and goat ranchers for added income and weed control.

An Invitation to Join SCKA

We invite you to join the "SouthCentral Katahdin Hair Sheep Association" (SCKA). We are a group of Katahdin breeders formed to promote and market registered and commercial Katahdins. Many Katahdins from SCKA Breeders are performing in ranching and farming operations throughout the US and Mexico. For more information on how Katahdin Hair Sheep can benefit you, visit our website www.hair-sheep.com to contact a SCKA breeder near you.

Katahdin

First American
made Hair Sheep

- Requires No Shearing
- Heavy Muscled
- Very Docile
- Prolific
- No Tail Docking

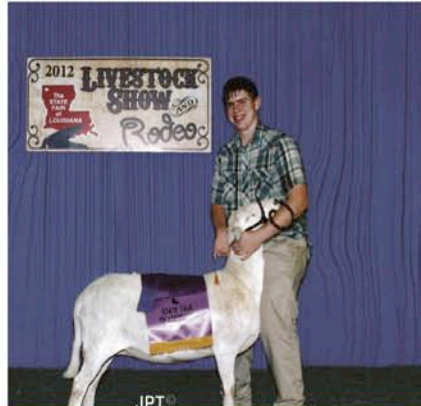

SouthCentral Katahdin Hair Sheep Association
www.hair-sheep.com

SouthCentral Katahdin Hair Sheep Association

SCKA

Katahdins Adapt to Any Conditions

Katahdins are "Easy Keepers"

Katahdins adapt to any conditions. Whether you live in a northern or southern climate or in wet or dry conditions, the Katahdin sheep will work for you. Katahdin sheep are being welcomed throughout the Americas and many other countries.

Katahdin ewes have the ability to produce and raise twins or triplets.

Katahdins fit in very well with small operations. The Katahdin sheep require little management, are great mothers, and are very people-friendly.

Katahdin hair sheep shed their coats and require no shearing.

Because of Katahdin's great disposition, they make the perfect 4-H, FFA, or retirement projects.

- Parasite resistance/ tolerance
- Shedding hair coats — NO shearing
- Low-management that will make you money
- Ewes are excellent mothers